

Passionate about
dance & looking
for more performance
opportunities?

NLDC has been a widely respected training facility for dancers in London, Ontario for more than 20 years. In September 2014, we celebrated the inaugural season for The Young Company (YoCo) of North London Dance Centre!

What does this mean?

For concert dance schools like ours (non-competitive) this is a wonderful opportunity to compliment our strong technical training program with performance-oriented training.

Members of The Young Company have the opportunity to work with professional choreographers, and learn pieces in a variety of contemporary styles which will be performed (at minimum) at our Winterlude and June Recital shows, but also throughout the community at large. The Young Company provides essential performance training & experience that strengthens the individual dancer's talents, while enhancing their understanding of the performance process and its demands.
